1 Background

The Higher School Certificate Program of Study

The purpose of the Higher School Certificate program of study is to:

- provide a curriculum structure which encourages students to complete secondary education
- foster the intellectual, social and moral development of students, in particular developing their:
  - knowledge, skills, understanding and attitudes in the fields of study they choose
  - capacity to manage their own learning
  - desire to continue learning in formal or informal settings after school
  - capacity to work together with others
  - respect for the cultural diversity of Australian society
- provide a flexible structure within which students can prepare for:
  - further education and training
  - employment
  - full and active participation as citizens
- provide formal assessment and certification of students’ achievements
- provide a context within which schools also have the opportunity to foster students’ physical and spiritual development.
2 Rationale

The study of history is an inquiry into past human experience that helps make the present more intelligible. History has been described as a contested dialogue between past and present, where the concerns of the present illuminate a consideration of the past, while the experiences of the past contribute to an understanding of the present. The study of history allows students to perceive the world in a variety of ways as they develop powers of deduction and reasoning and learn to make sense of an increasingly complex global society.

The study of Modern History Stage 6 has a distinctive role in the school curriculum as it challenges students to consider the great social, technological, economic, political and moral transformations from the late eighteenth century to the present. It requires students to analyse the causes, progress and effects of these transformations and, finally, to make judgements about them. Modern History Stage 6 is especially relevant to the lives of students, as the events and issues that form its content are, in many cases, still current.

The study of Modern History Stage 6 also contributes to the development of skills that are of great importance in today’s workforce. The fluent communication of thoughts and ideas gleaned from the critical analysis of primary and secondary sources is a sought after skill. The ability to deconstruct texts and narratives, pose intelligent questions, test hypotheses and make critical use of information technologies is essential to living and working in the twenty-first century.

Within the Australian context, the knowledge, skills, values and attitudes acquired through a study of Modern History Stage 6 are essential ingredients in the promotion of a democratic, harmonious, progressive and tolerant society. Modern History Stage 6 helps empower students to become responsible and active citizens who will recognise the factors affecting change and continuity in human affairs. This broad understanding encourages students to develop an appreciation of different views and to be aware of how such views contribute to individual and group actions in various local, national and international contexts.
3 Continuum of Learning

In Stage 4 History (Mandatory) students are required to undertake an introductory unit Investigating History which explores the purpose and nature of history, the process used by historians to investigate and record the past and issues of heritage and conservation in relation to a study of the past. In Stage 4, all students undertake studies of Aboriginal and Indigenous Peoples, Colonisation and Contact History and have the optional study of Shaping the Modern World.

Stage 5 History (Mandatory) focuses on twentieth-century Australian history. Students continue to develop the skills of historical inquiry through this study. An understanding of the Stages 4–5 (Mandatory) material is assumed knowledge for Modern History students in Stage 6.
4  Aim

Modern History Stage 6 is designed to enable students to acquire knowledge and understanding, the skills of critical analysis and synthesis, and values and attitudes essential to an appreciation of forces that have shaped the modern world; to develop a lifelong interest in the study of history; and to prepare them for informed and active citizenship in the contemporary world.

5  Objectives

Through the study of Modern History Stage 6 students will develop:

knowledge and understanding about:
1  key features, issues, individuals and events from the late eighteenth century to the present
2  change and continuity over time skills to:

3  undertake the process of historical inquiry
4  communicate an understanding of history and responsible values and attitudes about:

5  informed and active citizenship
6  a just society
7  the influence of the past on the present and the future
8  the contribution of historical studies to lifelong learning.

6  Course Requirements

For the Preliminary course:
•  120 indicative hours are required to complete the course

For the HSC course:
•  the Preliminary course is a prerequisite
•  120 indicative hours are required to complete the course.
7 Course Structure

Preliminary Course (120 indicative hours)

The Preliminary course is structured to provide students with opportunities to investigate key features, individuals, groups, events, concepts and historiographical issues in a range of historical contexts as background for their HSC studies.

Students are required to study Parts I, II and III of the course.

Part I: Case Studies – 50%
At least TWO case studies should be undertaken.
ONE case study must be from Europe, North America or Australia. List A on page 18 provides examples of these.
ONE case study must be from Asia, the Pacific, Africa, the Middle East or Central/South America. List B on page 18 provides examples of these.

Note: there is no prescribed length or time for each case study.

Part II: Historical Investigation – 20%
The investigation can be integrated into any aspect of the Preliminary course and need not be completed as one project. It may be conducted individually or as part of a group. The investigation must not overlap or duplicate significantly any topic attempted for the HSC Modern History or History Extension courses.

Further detail on the investigation is provided on page 23.

Part III: Core Study: The World at the Beginning of the Twentieth Century – 30%
Students will investigate the Preliminary core study using a source-based approach.

HSC Course (120 indicative hours)

Students are required to study Parts I, II, III and IV of the course.

Part I: Core Study: World War I 1914–1919: A Source-based Study 25%

Part II: ONE National Study 25%

Part III: ONE Personality in the Twentieth Century 25%

Part IV: ONE International Study in Peace and Conflict 25%
Modern History Stage 6 Syllabus

The assessment and HSC examination requirements detailed in this syllabus apply to the 2009 HSC. New Assessment and Reporting information will apply to this syllabus for the 2010 HSC and beyond.

Values and Attitudes

Values and attitudes are inherent in the subject matter of Modern History Stage 6 and the skills that are developed in it. They result from learning experiences and reflection.

Students need to develop values and attitudes that promote a democratic and just society.

8.2 Key Competencies

Modern History Stage 6 provides a powerful context within which to develop general competencies considered essential for the acquisition of effective, higher-order thinking skills necessary for further education, work and everyday life.

Key competencies are embedded in the Modern History Stage 6 Syllabus to enhance student learning.

The key competencies of collecting, analysing and organising information and communicating ideas and information reflect core processes of historical inquiry and are explicit in the objectives and outcomes of the syllabus.

The other key competencies are developed through the methodologies of the syllabus and through classroom pedagogy in the following ways:

- students work as individuals and as members of groups to conduct historical investigations, and through this, the key competencies planning and organising activities and working with others and in teams are developed
- when students construct timelines or analyse statistical evidence, they are developing the key competency using mathematical ideas and techniques
- during investigations, students will need to use appropriate information technologies and so develop the key competency using technology
- finally, the exploration of issues and the investigation of the nature of historical problems contribute towards students’ development of the key competency solving problems.
9 Content: Preliminary Course

9.1 Overview of the Content

The Preliminary course is structured to provide students with opportunities to investigate the role of key features, issues, individuals, groups, events and concepts from the eighteenth century to the present using the methods of historical inquiry.

When studying the Preliminary course students should have opportunities to investigate significant historiographical issues including:
- the variety of primary and secondary sources available
- the usefulness and reliability of the sources
- the different perspectives and interpretations offered by the sources.

The Preliminary course comprises Part I: Case Studies, Part II: Historical Investigation, and Part III: Core Study: The World at the Beginning of the Twentieth Century.

Parts I, II and III of the Preliminary course can be studied in any order.

Part I: Case Studies

Case studies are inquiry-based investigations into key features, issues, individuals, groups, events or concepts in modern history. They are oriented towards the problems and issues of investigating the past.

Case studies in the Preliminary course are intended to provide students with opportunities to:
- study the various ways historians perceive, investigate, describe, explain, record and construct the past, the types of questions they ask, the explanations they give, the issues they raise
- describe, explain, understand, question, analyse and interpret sources.

Case studies provide a historical context within which students can learn about the methods used by historians and a range of specialists to investigate the past and develop the understanding and competencies that underpin subsequent studies across Stage 6.

The list of key features on page 16 provides the primary focus for the case studies. The other elements of the studies, the concepts, individuals and groups and events, are studied within the context of the key features.

Part II: Historical Investigation

The historical investigation is designed to provide opportunities for all students to further develop relevant investigative, research and presentation skills that are the core of the historical inquiry process.

Students may:
- investigate a case study of their own, an aspect of a case study or an aspect of the Preliminary core study
- undertake the historical investigation individually or as a member of a group.

The historical investigation can be integrated into any aspect of the Preliminary course and need not be completed as one project.
Part III: Core Study: The World at the Beginning of the Twentieth Century

Students shall investigate the Preliminary core study using a source-based approach.

Sources are any written or non-written materials that can be used to investigate the past. Historians base their research on sources relevant to their inquiry. They analyse sources to discover if they hold any evidence that will be relevant to their particular historical inquiry.

The evidence is the information contained in the source. Historians can retrieve it by asking relevant questions. Thus a source is not the same as evidence. A source becomes evidence if it is used to answer a question on the past. It may be evidence for one aspect of history but not for another. Some sources contain useful information but often not all the evidence that is needed in the inquiry.

Using sources is an important part of the process of historical inquiry. The historical inquiry process involves posing questions, finding information, assessing the reliability of sources, analysing and interpreting the evidence contained in the sources and publishing the findings.

By adopting a source-based approach to investigate the Preliminary core study students gain experience of working as historians. As well, they develop knowledge and skills to help underpin their investigation of the HSC core study.
9.2 Part I: Case Studies

Principal focus: Students apply historical inquiry methods within a range of historical contexts to investigate key features, issues, individuals, groups, events, concepts and other forces in the eighteenth, nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

Outcomes

Students:

P1.1 describe the role of key individuals, groups and events of selected studies from the eighteenth century to the present
P1.2 investigate and explain the key features and issues of selected studies from the eighteenth century to the present
P2.1 identify forces and ideas and explain their significance in contributing to change and continuity from the eighteenth century to the present
P3.1 ask relevant historical questions
P3.2 locate, select and organise relevant information from different types of sources
P3.3 comprehend and analyse sources for their usefulness and reliability
P3.4 identify and account for differing perspectives and interpretations of the past
P3.5 plan and present the findings of historical investigations, analysing and synthesising information from different types of sources
P4.1 use historical terms and concepts appropriately
P4.2 communicate a knowledge and understanding of historical features and issues, using appropriate and well-structured oral and written forms

Students learn to:

- ask relevant historical questions about selected studies of the modern world
- locate, select and organise information from different types of sources, including information and communication technologies (ICT), to describe and analyse relevant features and issues of selected studies of the modern world
- analyse the major events and issues relevant to selected studies of the modern world
- assess the forces for change and continuity within selected studies of the modern world
- describe and evaluate the role of key individuals and groups in selected studies of the modern world
- account for and assess differing perspectives and interpretations of significant events, people and issues in selected studies of the modern world
- present the findings of investigations on selected studies of the modern world, analysing and synthesising information from different types of sources
- communicate an understanding of relevant concepts, features and issues using appropriate and well-structured oral and/or written and/or multimedia forms including ICT.

Students learn about:

key features and issues of the modern world

- political, economic, social and technological features of the selected case study
- forces for change that emerged in the period of the selected case study
- the nature of the political, social, economic and technological change that occurred in the period of the selected case study
- the impact of change on the society or period of the selected case study concepts (where relevant to the case study)
- autocracy
- capitalism
- communism
- decolonisation
- democracy
- feminism
- globalisation
- imperialism
- industrialisation
- internationalism
- liberalism
- nationalism
- pan-nationalism
- racism
- revolution
- sectarianism
- self-determination
- socialism
- terrorism

individuals and groups in relation to
- their historical context
- their personal background and the values and attitudes that influenced their actions
- significant events and achievements
- their contribution to the society and time in which they lived and the legacy of this contribution events in relation to

- factors contributing to the events
- main features of the events
- impact of the events on the history of an individual nation, region and/or the world as a whole.
Students undertake at least TWO case studies. Teachers may develop their own case studies.

ONE case study must be from Europe, North America or Australia – see examples below.

ONE case study must be from Asia, the Pacific, Africa, the Middle East or Central/South America – see examples below.

Case studies must not overlap or duplicate significantly any topic attempted in the HSC Modern History or History Extension courses.

Teachers may develop their own case study. The case study must not overlap or duplicate significantly any topic attempted for the HSC Modern History or History Extension courses.
9.3 Part II: Historical Investigation

The historical investigation is designed to provide opportunities for all students to further develop relevant investigative, research and presentation skills that are the core of the historical inquiry process. The outcomes addressed in the investigation build on those in the Years 7–10 History syllabus. Modern History students will access the Preliminary Stage 6 outcomes at different levels depending on their previous experiences and abilities. The investigation also provides the context for a practical application of the key competencies described on page 13.

The historical investigation should extend a particular area of individual student or group interest. The investigation can be integrated into any aspect of the Preliminary course and need not be completed as one project.

Students should be encouraged to select a topic and presentation style that reflects their individual interests and abilities.

Possible historical investigations could include:
- a case study
- aspects of a case study
- aspects of the Preliminary core study
- significant individuals or groups
- significant events
- aspects of society
- a thematic study
- historical debates
- historical concepts
- historical sites
- constructions of the modern world by the media.

The investigation should not overlap or duplicate significantly any topic attempted for the HSC Modern History or History Extension courses.

The process of investigation involves:
- planning and conducting historical investigations
- comprehending written sources
- locating, selecting and organising relevant information from a variety of sources
- using a variety of sources to develop a view about historical issues
- analysing sources for their usefulness and reliability
- identifying different historical perspectives and interpretations evident in sources
- formulating historical questions and hypotheses relevant to the investigation
- using historical terms and concepts appropriately
- synthesising information from a range of sources to develop and support a historical argument
- presenting and communicating the findings of the historical investigation using appropriate and well-structured oral and/or written and/or multimedia forms including ICT.

History Extension will further develop investigative, research and presentation skills for those students who choose to take the course.
9.4 Part III: Core Study: The World at the Beginning of the Twentieth Century

Principal focus: Students lay the foundations for their twentieth-century studies by investigating the forces and ideas for change and continuity that shaped the early twentieth-century world using the methods of historical inquiry.

Outcomes

Students:

P1.1 describe the role of key individuals, groups and events of selected studies from the eighteenth century to the present
P1.2 investigate and explain the key features and issues of selected studies from the eighteenth century to the present
P2.1 identify forces and ideas and explain their significance in contributing to change and continuity from the eighteenth century to the present
P3.1 ask relevant historical questions
P3.2 locate, select and organise relevant information from different types of sources
P3.3 comprehend and analyse sources for their usefulness and reliability
P3.4 identify and account for differing perspectives and interpretations of the past
P3.5 plan and present the findings of historical investigations, analysing and synthesising information from different types of sources
P4.1 use historical terms and concepts appropriately
P4.2 communicate a knowledge and understanding of historical features and issues using appropriate and well-structured oral and written forms

Students learn to:

• ask relevant historical questions about the world at the beginning of the twentieth century
• locate, select and organise information from different types of sources, including ICT, to describe and analyse relevant features and issues of the world at the beginning of the twentieth century
• analyse the major events and issues relevant at the turn of the century
• assess the forces for change and continuity at the turn of the century
• describe and evaluate the role of key individuals and groups at the turn of the century
• evaluate the usefulness and reliability of sources
• account for and assess differing perspectives and interpretations of significant events, people and issues at the beginning of the twentieth century
• present the findings of investigations on aspects of the period, analysing and synthesising information from different types of sources
• communicate an understanding of relevant concepts, features and issues using appropriate and well-structured oral and/or written and/or multimedia forms including ICT.
Modern History Stage 6 Syllabus

   - social and economic effects of the war on civilians in Britain and EITHER Germany OR the Soviet Union
   - Nazi racial policies: the Holocaust and the persecution of minorities

4 End of the conflict
   - ‘D’ Day and the liberation of France
   - Russian counter offensives 1944
   - final defeat 1944–1945
   - Nuremberg War Crimes trials
Option C: Conflict in Indochina 1954–1979

Principal focus: Students investigate key features and issues in the history of the conflict in Indochina 1954–1979.

Key features and issues:
- nature and role of nationalism
- nature and role of communism
- nature and consequences of US involvement
- strategies and tactics
- impact of the war on civilians in Indochina
- attempts at peacemaking
- reasons for communist victory

Students learn about:

1 Indochina after the French
   - consequences of the Vietnamese victory against the French
   - consequences of the Geneva Peace Agreement for the Vietnamese people to 1964
   - political, social, economic and military developments within North and South Vietnam

2 The USA and Indochina
   - political and social issues in Indochina by 1960
   - nature and development of US policy towards Indochina generally and Vietnam in particular
   - impact of direct US military involvement in Vietnam and the consequences for Vietnam and Cambodia

3 The Second Indochina War
   - nature and effectiveness of the strategy and tactics employed by the North Vietnamese Army and the National Liberation Front (NLF), and by the South Vietnamese and the USA
   - impact of the 1968 Tet Offensive
   - impact of the war on civilians in Indochina
   - impact of the spread of the Vietnam War to Cambodia
   - nature and significance of anti-war movements in the USA
   - the defeat of the South Vietnamese forces

4 Pol Pot’s Regime
   - rise to power of the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia
   - nature, aims and methods of Pol Pot
Option D: Conflict in the Pacific 1937–1951

Principal focus: Students investigate key features and issues in the history of the conflict in the Pacific 1937–1951.

Key features and issues:
- imperialism and responses to it
- nature and impact of nationalism
- Japanese and Allied strategies
- impact of the war on the home fronts of Japan and Australia
- impact of the war in Occupied Territories in South-East Asia
- use of the A-bomb
- reasons for the Japanese defeat
- aims and consequences of the Allied Occupation of Japan

Students learn about:

1. Growth of Pacific tensions
   - economic and political issues in the Pacific by 1937
   - Japanese foreign policy 1937–1941
   - US and British policies in the Pacific 1937–1941
   - strategic and political reasons for bombing Pearl Harbour

2. Course of the Pacific War
   - Japanese advance 1941–1942 and the impact of the fall of the Philippines, Singapore, Burma and the Dutch East Indies
   - turning points in the war: Battle of the Coral Sea, Battle of Midway, Battle of Guadalcanal, New Guinea
   - strategies used by Allied forces against Japan 1942–1945

3. Civilians at war
   - social, political and economic effects on civilians in occupied territories in South-East Asia
   - life under Occupation: collaboration and resistance, the use of slave labour
   - the effect of the war on the home fronts in Japan and Australia

4. End of the conflict
   - reasons for the use of the A-bomb and the subsequent controversy over its use
   - reasons for the Japanese defeat
   - War Crimes Tribunals and the status of the Emperor
   - Allied Occupation of Japan to 1951
Modern History Stage 6 Syllabus

The assessment and HSC examination requirements detailed in this syllabus apply to the 2009 HSC. New Assessment and Reporting information will apply to this syllabus for the 2010 HSC and beyond.

Option E: The Arab–Israeli Conflict 1948–1996

Principal focus: Students investigate key features and issues in the history of the Arab-Israeli conflict 1948–1996.

Key features and issues:
• origins and development of the conflict
• nature and impact of nationalism
• changing Palestinian and Israeli responses to the conflict
• nature and consequences of Israeli occupation of the Occupied Territories
• terrorism/violence and their impact on Israeli and Palestinian communities
• attempts at peacemaking
• international involvement in the conflict

Students learn about:

1 Origins of tension
   – the War of Independence (Israeli) or The Catastrophe (Palestinian) 1948
   – consequences of the war for Israel and the Palestinians to 1967
   – political and social issues in Arab–Israeli relations in 1967

2 War and peace
   – causes, course and consequences of the 1967 (Six Day) War
   – creation, aims, methods and effectiveness of the Palestinian Liberation Organisation (PLO) 1964–1974
   – causes, course and consequences of the 1973 (Yom Kippur) War, including the Camp David Treaty
   – role and objectives of the superpowers in relation to events in the Middle East

3 The Occupied Territories and Lebanon
   – attitudes and policies of the Israeli Labour and Likud parties towards the Occupied Territories
   – rise and significance of the Israeli settler movement in the Occupied Territories
   – reasons for the Israeli invasions of Lebanon in 1978 and 1982
   – the significance of the war for Israel and the Palestinians

4 The peace process
   – successes and setbacks in the peace process 1987–1996
   – support and opposition for the peace process among Israelis and Palestinians
   – significance of the assassination of Yitzhak Rabin and the election of Netanyahu in 1996
Option F: The Cold War 1945–1991

Principal focus: Students investigate key features and issues in the history of the Cold War 1945–1991.

Key features and issues:
- origins and development of the Cold War
- influence of the ideologies of communism and capitalism on the Cold War
- origins, nature and impact of détente on the Cold War
- changing policies, strategies and responses to the Cold War
- impact of crises on changing superpower relations
- the arms race and disarmament
- reasons for the end of the Cold War

Students learn about:

1 Origins of the Cold War 1945–1953
   - 1945 conferences and the emergence of the superpowers
   - emerging differences between the superpowers
   - the Truman Doctrine and its consequences
   - impact of the early crises: the Berlin blockade and airlift, China becoming communist in 1949 and the Korean War

2 Development of the Cold War to 1968
   - policy of containment, domino theory and the emergence of peaceful co-existence
   - superpower rivalry: the arms race and space race

3 Détente
   - economic and political reasons for détente
   - geopolitical developments: Vietnam, Sino-Soviet split, the Middle East
   - features and consequences of détente

4 Renewal and end of the Cold War
   - Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and its impact
   - US attitudes and policies under Reagan
   - Soviet attitudes and policies under Gorbachev
   - collapse of communism in Eastern Europe and the USSR

Principal focus: Students investigate the key features and issues in the history of the United Nations as peacekeeper 1946–2001.

Key features and issues:
- origins and goals of the UN
- tensions between internationalism and national sovereignty
- role and effectiveness of the UN in diplomacy and peacekeeping
- role and effectiveness of the UN’s humanitarian agencies
- enforcement of UN resolutions
- contribution of the UN to disarmament
- effect of the Cold War on UN activities
- changing nature and role of the UN

Students learn about:

1 Origins and early challenges of the United Nations
   - reasons for the creation of the UN
   - key provisions and articles of the Charter of the UN and the Declaration of Human Rights
   - the Security Council, the General Assembly, the Secretariat and the role of the veto
   - impact of the creation of Israel, Communist China and the Korean War

2 The development of the UN
   - effect of the Cold War on UN activities
   - pursuit of nuclear disarmament
   - impact of Third World countries and changing membership on the UN
   - assessment of the role and impact of the UN as international peacekeeper in any TWO of the following conflicts: Angola, Cambodia, Congo, Cyprus, Arab-Israeli conflicts 1967 and 1973, Kashmir, Nicaragua, West Papua/Irian Jaya

3 Challenges to peace
   - major challenges facing the international community: racism, refugees, child soldiers, landmines, poverty, gender inequity, war crimes, illiteracy, AIDS
   - role and effectiveness of the UN and its agencies in dealing with poverty, racism, refugees and AIDS

4 The UN since the end of the Cold War
   - debate over the role and structure of the UN since the end of the Cold War
   - nature of the relationship with major powers and alliances
   - continuing efforts to promote disarmament and prevent nuclear proliferation
   - assessment of the role and impact of the UN as international peacekeeper in any TWO of the following conflicts: the Gulf War and its aftermath; the former Yugoslavia; Somalia 1993 and Rwanda 1994; East Timor 1999–2001
11 Assessment and Reporting

PLEASE NOTE
The assessment and HSC examination requirements detailed in this syllabus refer to the 2009 HSC. New Assessment and Reporting information will apply to this syllabus for the 2010 HSC and beyond.

11.1 Requirements and Advice

The information in this section of the syllabus relates to the Board of Studies’ requirements for assessing and reporting achievement in the Preliminary and HSC courses for the Higher School Certificate.

Assessment is the process of gathering information and making judgements about student achievement for a variety of purposes.

In the Preliminary and HSC courses those purposes include:

- assisting student learning
- evaluating and improving teaching and learning programs
- providing evidence of satisfactory achievement and completion in the Preliminary course
- providing the Higher School Certificate results.

Reporting refers to the Higher School Certificate documents received by students that are used by the Board to report both the internal and external measures of achievement.

Higher School Certificate results comprise:

- an assessment mark derived from the mark submitted by the school and produced in accordance with the Board’s requirements for the internal assessment program
- an examination mark derived from the HSC external examination
- an HSC mark, which is the average of the assessment mark and the examination mark
- a performance band, determined by the HSC mark.

Results are reported using a course report containing a performance scale with bands describing standards of achievement in the course.

The use of both internal assessment and external examinations of student achievement allows measurements and observations to be made at several points and in different ways throughout the HSC course. Taken together, the external examination and internal assessment marks provide a valid and reliable assessment of the achievement of the knowledge, understanding and skills described for each course.

The Board of Studies uses a standards-referenced approach to assessing and reporting student achievement in the Higher School Certificate.

The standards in the HSC are:

- the knowledge, skills and understanding expected to be learnt by students – the syllabus standards
- the levels of achievement of the knowledge, skills and understanding – the performance standards.
Both syllabus standards and performance standards are based on the aims, objectives, outcomes and content of a course. Together they specify what is to be learnt and how well it is to be achieved.

Teacher understanding of standards comes from the set of aims, objectives, outcomes and content in each syllabus together with:
• the performance descriptions that summarise the different levels of performance of the course outcomes
• HSC examination papers and marking guidelines
• samples of students’ achievement, collected in the Standards Packages.

11.2 Internal Assessment

The internal assessment mark submitted by the school provides a summation of each student’s achievements measured at points throughout the course. The marks for each course group at a school should reflect the rank order of students and relative differences between students’ achievements.

Internal assessment provides a measure of a student’s achievement based on a wider range of syllabus content and outcomes than may be covered by the external examination alone. The assessment components and weightings to be applied to internal assessment are identified on page 78. They ensure a common focus for internal assessment in the course across schools, while allowing for flexibility in the design of tasks. A variety of tasks should be used to give students the opportunity to demonstrate outcomes in different ways and to improve the validity and reliability of the assessment.

11.3 External Examination

In Modern History Stage 6 the external examination is a written paper. The specifications for the examination in Modern History Stage 6 are on page 79.

The external examination provides a measure of student achievement in a range of syllabus outcomes that can be reliably measured in an examination setting.

The external examination and its marking and reporting relate to syllabus standards by:
• providing clear links to syllabus outcomes
• enabling students to demonstrate the levels of achievement outlined in the course performance scale
• applying marking guidelines based on established criteria.

11.4 Board Requirements for the Internal Assessment Mark

The Board requires schools to submit an assessment mark for each candidate in the HSC Modern History course. The Board requires that the assessment tasks used to determine the internal assessment mark must comply with the components and weightings specified in the table on page 78.
The collection of information for the HSC internal assessment mark must not begin prior to the completion of the Preliminary course.

Schools are required to develop an internal assessment program that:

- specifies the various assessment tasks and the weightings allocated to each task
- provides a schedule of the tasks designed for the whole course.

The standards-referenced approach to assessment for the HSC involves schools ensuring that:

- in the design and marking of tasks:
  - assessment tasks are designed to focus on outcomes
  - the types of assessment tasks are appropriate for the outcomes being assessed
  - students are given the opportunity to demonstrate their level of achievement of the outcomes in a range of different task types
  - tasks reflect the weightings and components specified in the relevant syllabus
  - students know the assessment criteria before they begin a task
  - marking guidelines for each task are linked to the standards by including the wording of syllabus outcomes and relevant performance descriptions
  - marks earned on individual tasks are expressed on a scale sufficiently wide to reflect adequately the relative differences in student performances.

- in the feedback and reporting:
  - students get meaningful feedback about what they are able to do and what they need to do in order to improve their level of performance
  - the ranking and relative differences between students result from different levels of achievement of the specified standards
  - marks submitted to the Board for each course are on a scale sufficiently wide to reflect adequately the relative differences in student performances.

Note that:

- measures of objectives and outcomes that address values and attitudes should not be included in school-based assessments of students’ achievements. (As these objectives are important elements of any course, schools may decide to report on them separately to students and parents, perhaps using some form of descriptive statements)
- measures that reflect student conduct should not be included.

Assessment Components and Weightings

Preliminary course

The suggested components and weightings for the Preliminary course are set out below. There should be a balance between the assessment of knowledge and understanding outcomes, skills outcomes and course content.

HSC course
The mandatory components and weightings for the HSC course are set out below. The internal assessment mark for the HSC Modern History course is to be based on the HSC course only. There should be a balance between the assessment of knowledge and understanding outcomes, skills outcomes and course content.

<table>

Teachers can use their discretion in determining the manner in which they allocate tasks within course content. It is suggested that 3–5 tasks are sufficient to assess the HSC course outcomes.
11.5 HSC Examination Specifications

Time allowed: 3 hours.
The written paper is divided into four sections:

Section I: Core Study: World War I 1914–1919: A Source-based Study (25 marks)

• There will be three short-answer questions related to the source material provided:
  – Question 1 will require candidates to locate and/or comprehend and/or make simple deductions from some or all of the sources in context. This question may contain a number of parts.
  – Question 2 will require candidates to answer a question using at least two sources and their own knowledge.
  – Question 3 will require candidates to assess sources in terms of their usefulness, reliability and/or perspectives.
• Candidates must attempt all questions.

Section II: National Studies (25 marks)

• There will be nine questions, one for each National Study.
• Candidates must attempt ONE question.
• Candidates choose from two alternatives in each question.
• Each question will require an extended response.

Section III: Personalities in the Twentieth Century (25 marks)

• There will be one question in two parts that is generic to the twenty-seven personalities.
• Candidates must attempt the question in relation to ONE personality.
• The question will require a response in two parts. The first part will require a description, outline or narrative and the second part will require analysis, assessment or evaluation of the personality.

Section IV: International Studies in Peace and Conflict (25 marks)

• There will be seven questions, one for each International Study in Peace and Conflict.
• Candidates must attempt ONE question.
• Candidates choose from two alternatives in each question.
• Each question will require an extended response.

12 Post-school Opportunities

The study of Modern History provides students with knowledge, understanding and skills that form a valuable foundation for a range of courses at university and other tertiary institutions.

In addition, the study of Modern History assists students to prepare for employment and full and active participation as citizens. In particular, there are opportunities for students to gain recognition in vocational education and training. Teachers and students should be aware of these opportunities.

Recognition of Student Achievement

Wherever appropriate, the skills and knowledge acquired by students in their study of HSC courses should be recognised by industry and training organisations. Recognition of student achievement means that students who have satisfactorily completed HSC courses will not be required to repeat their learning in courses in TAFE NSW or other Registered Training Organisations (RTOs).

Registered Training Organisations, such as TAFE NSW, provide industry training and issue qualifications within the Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF).

The degree of recognition available to students in each subject is based on the similarity of outcomes between HSC courses and industry training packages endorsed within the AQF. Training packages are documents that link an industry’s competency standards to AQF qualifications. More information about industry training packages can be found on the National Training Information Service (NTIS) website (www.ntis.gov.au).

Recognition by TAFE NSW

TAFE NSW conducts courses in a wide range of industry areas, as outlined each year in the TAFE NSW Handbook. Under current arrangements, the recognition available to Modern History students in relevant courses conducted by TAFE is described in the HSC/TAFE Credit Transfer Guide. This guide is produced by the Board of Studies NSW and TAFE NSW and is distributed annually to all schools and colleges. Teachers should refer to this guide and be aware of the recognition available to their students through the study of Modern History. This information can be found on the TAFE NSW website (www.tafensw.edu.au/mchoice).

Recognition by other Registered Training Organisations

Students may also negotiate recognition into a training package qualification with another Registered Training Organisation. Each student will need to provide the RTO with evidence of satisfactory achievement in Modern History so that the degree of recognition available can be determined.
13 Glossary

anarchism an ideology that argues a society can be run without rules or a government and that the abolition of these things will lead to freedom, equality and justice

anti-ecumenism opposed to the doctrines and practice of the ecumenical movement and hence to the unity of the Christian churches anti-Semitism hostility or hatred towards peoples of Semitic origins but is used to mean anti-Jewish apartheid a policy of racial segregation, exploitation and oppression developed by white minority South African governments appeasement a policy attributed to European governments in the 1930s that met the expansionist policies of Nazi Germany by offering concessions

autocracy absolute rule or government by one person

Bolshevism an ideology advocating the seizure of power by a revolutionary elite in the name of the proletariat capitalism an economic system that encourages individuals to make profits through investments and the private ownership of goods, property and the means of production, distribution and exchange case studies case studies are inquiry-based investigations into key features, issues, individuals, groups, events or concepts in modern history. They are oriented towards the problems and issues of investigating the past.

Case studies in the Preliminary course are intended to provide students with opportunities to:
• study the various ways in which historians perceive, investigate, record and construct the past, the types of questions they ask, the explanations they give and the issues they raise
• understand, question, analyse and interpret sources.

collectivisation the socialist policy of joining together small farms and other enterprises under group or state ownership communism a theory or system of social organisation promoting shared ownership of property and the means of production by the community as a whole or the state communalism a theory that a nation should be organised around different regional communities and that a nation is merely a federation of such states. In India these communities are mostly religious.

conservatism opposition to radical change with a tendency to support existing institutions
