HSC English Course Requirements

Study of texts prescribed in any course for the Higher School Certificate examination may not begin before the completion of the Preliminary course. This exclusion applies to study in all English Preliminary courses and to Preliminary courses in other subjects such as Drama. It also applies to the study of a prescribed text in another medium, such as the film of a novel. ‘Study’ of texts does not apply to attending performances during the Preliminary course of plays prescribed as HSC texts or to taking part in production of them.

HSC English (Standard) Course Requirements

Text Requirements:

- the close study of at least FOUR TYPES OF PRESCRIBED TEXT, one drawn from EACH of the following categories:
 - prose fiction
 - drama
 - poetry
 - nonfiction or film or media or multimedia texts
- a wide range of additional related texts and textual forms.

The course has two sections and the requirements listed above apply to both sections.

Section 1 Content common to the Standard and Advanced Courses where students analyse and explore texts and apply skills in synthesis. The HSC Common Content consists of one Area of Study common to the HSC Standard and Advanced courses.	Section 2 Modules which emphasise particular aspects of shaping meaning and demonstration of the effectiveness of texts for different audiences and purposes. Students are required to choose one elective from each of Modules A, B and C.
Study in the HSC course requires close study of particular texts, supported by students’ own wide reading.

In order to satisfy course requirements, a different type of prescribed text must be studied in the Area of Study and each of the three modules.

Students may study additional prescribed texts if they choose.

HSC English (Advanced) Course Requirements

Text Requirements:

- the close study of at least FIVE TYPES OF PRESCRIBED TEXT, one drawn from EACH of the following categories:
 - Shakespearean drama
 - prose fiction
 - drama or film
 - poetry
 - nonfiction or media or multimedia texts
- a wide range of additional related texts and textual forms.

The course has two sections and the requirements listed above apply to both sections.

Section 1 Content common to the Standard and Advanced Courses where students analyse and explore texts and apply skills in synthesis. The HSC Common Content consists of one Area of Study common to the HSC Standard and Advanced courses.	Section 2 Modules which emphasise particular aspects of shaping meaning and representation, questions of textual integrity, and ways in which texts are valued. Students are required to choose one elective from each of Modules A, B and C.
Study in the HSC course requires close study of particular texts, supported by students' own wide reading.

In order to satisfy course requirements, a different type of prescribed text must be studied in the Area of Study and each of the three modules.

Students may study additional prescribed texts if they choose.

HSC English (ESL) Course Requirements

Text Requirements:

- the close study of at least THREE TYPES OF PRESCRIBED TEXT drawn from:
 - prose fiction
 - drama
 - poetry
 - nonfiction
 - film or media or multimedia texts
- a wide range of additional related texts and textual forms.

The course has two sections and the requirements listed above apply to both sections.

Section 1	Section 2
Language Study within an Area of Study where students reinforce and extend their language skills and apply skills in synthesis. Language Study within an Area of Study comprises 50% of the content and it consists of one prescribed Area of Study.	Modules which emphasise particular aspects of shaping meaning and demonstration of the effectiveness of texts for different audiences and purposes. Students are required to choose one elective from each of the two modules. The modules comprise 50% of the content.

In order to satisfy course requirements, two different types of prescribed text must be studied in the Area of Study and a third type of text must be studied in Module A.

Students may study additional prescribed texts if they choose.

HSC English Extension Course Requirements

HSC English Extension 1 Course Requirements

Students undertaking the HSC English Extension 1 course must complete ONE elective chosen from HSC Modules A, B or C.

HSC English Extension 2 Course Requirements

In the HSC English Extension 2 course, students develop an extended composition, and document and reflect on this process.

Students undertaking the HSC English Extension 2 course must complete the Major Work.

Area of Study and Texts for the Common Content of Standard and Advanced Courses

The Area of Study must be considered in the context of the Area of Study description in the syllabus, course objectives, content and outcomes. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, p 32 and pp 35–38; p 50 and pp 53–56.)

AREA OF STUDY

In the Area of Study, students explore and examine relationships between language and text, and interrelationships among texts. They examine closely the individual qualities of texts while considering the texts' relationships to the wider context of the Area of Study. They synthesise ideas to clarify meaning and develop new meanings. They take into account whether aspects such as context, purpose and register, text structures, stylistic features, grammatical features and vocabulary are appropriate to the particular text.

AREA OF STUDY: Belonging

This Area of Study requires students to explore the ways in which the concept of belonging is represented in and through texts.

Perceptions and ideas of belonging, or of not belonging, vary. These perceptions are shaped within personal, cultural, historical and social contexts. A sense of belonging can emerge from the connections made with people, places, groups, communities and the larger world. Within this Area of Study, students may consider aspects of belonging in terms of experiences and notions of identity, relationships, acceptance and understanding.

Texts explore many aspects of belonging, including the potential of the individual to enrich or challenge a community or group. They may reflect the way attitudes to belonging are modified over time. Texts may also represent choices not to belong, or barriers which prevent belonging.

Perceptions and ideas of belonging in texts can be constructed through a variety of language modes, forms, features and structures. In engaging with the text, a responder may experience and understand the possibilities presented by a sense of belonging to, or exclusion from the text and the world it represents. This engagement may be influenced by the different ways perspectives are given voice in or are absent from a text.

In their responses and compositions students examine, question, and reflect and speculate on:

- how the concept of belonging is conveyed through the representations of people, relationships, ideas, places, events, and societies that they encounter in the prescribed text and texts of their own choosing related to the Area of Study
- assumptions underlying various representations of the concept of belonging
- how the composer's choice of language modes, forms, features and structures shapes and is shaped by a sense of belonging
- their own experiences of belonging, in a variety of contexts
- the ways in which they perceive the world through texts
- the ways in which exploring the concept and significance of belonging may broaden and deepen their understanding of themselves and their world.

Students explore the concept of belonging through at least one of the following:

MODULE C: Texts and Society

This module requires students to explore and analyse texts used in a specific situation. It assists students' understanding of the ways that texts communicate information, ideas, bodies of knowledge, attitudes and belief systems in ways particular to specific areas of society. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus p 34.)

ELECTIVES: Standard

MODULE C: Texts and Society

Elective 1: The Global Village

In this elective students explore a variety of texts that deal with the ways in which individuals and communities experience and live in a global context. Students consider the positive and negative aspects of the global village and the consequences of these on attitudes, values and beliefs. Students also consider the role and uses of media and technology within the global village and different attitudes people may have towards them. Students respond to and compose a range of texts to investigate how and in what ways living in a global village may influence the ways we communicate, engage and interact with each other.

Students will choose one of the following texts as the basis for their further exploration of the effects of this elective.

Prose Fiction

MODULE A: Comparative Study of Texts and Context

Elective 2: Texts in Time

In this elective students compare how the treatment of similar content in a pair of texts composed in different times and contexts may reflect changing values and perspectives. By considering the texts in their contexts and comparing values, ideas and language forms and features, students come to a heightened understanding of the meaning and significance of each text.

Students choose a pair of texts from the following list:

Prose Fiction and Film

- Shelley, Mary, Frankenstein, Penguin Red Classics, 2006, ISBN: 9780141024448 AND
- Scott, Ridley, Blade Runner (Director's Cut), Warner Bros, 1982, or Final Cut, 2007

MODULE B: Critical Study of Texts

This module requires students to engage with and develop an informed personal understanding of their prescribed text. Through critical analysis and evaluation of its language, content and construction, students will develop an appreciation of the textual integrity of their prescribed text. They refine their own understanding and interpretations of the prescribed text and critically consider these in the light of the perspectives of others. Students explore how context influences their own and others' responses to the text and how the text has been received and valued. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, p 52.)

Students choose one text from one of the listed types of text.

Shakespearean Drama

- Shakespeare, William, Hamlet, New Cambridge Shakespeare, Cambridge University Press, 2003, ISBN: 9780521532525; or Cambridge School Shakespeare, 2006, ISBN: 9780521618748

MODULE C: Representation and Text

This module requires students to explore various representations of events, personalities or situations. They evaluate how medium of production, textual form, perspective and choice of language influence meaning. The study develops students' understanding of the relationships between representation and meaning. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, p 52.)

Language Study within an Area of Study and Texts for the English (ESL) Course

The Language Study within an Area of Study must be considered in the context of the Language Study within an Area of Study description in the syllabus, course objectives, content and outcomes. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, pp 72–73.)

LANGUAGE STUDY WITHIN AN AREA OF STUDY

The Language Study within an Area of Study builds on and extends the development of skills in responding and composing undertaken in the Preliminary course. Students' language skills, knowledge and understanding are reinforced and extended as they respond to and compose longer, more sustained and more complex texts at and beyond the literal level and further develop their understanding of the ways in which meaning is shaped in and through texts.

In the Area of Study students explore and examine relationships between language and text, and interrelationships among texts. They examine closely the individual qualities of texts while considering the texts' relationships to the wider context of the Area of Study. They synthesise ideas to clarify meaning and develop new meanings. They take into account whether aspects such as context, purpose and register, text structures, stylistic features, grammatical features and vocabulary are appropriate to the particular text. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, pp 72–73.)

AREA OF STUDY: Belonging

This Area of Study requires students to explore the ways in which the concept of belonging is considered and expressed in and through texts. Through close language study, and by experimenting with different language choices, students will examine how perceptions of belonging, or not belonging, vary.

Perceptions of belonging are shaped within personal, cultural, historical and social contexts. A sense of belonging can emerge from the connections made with people, places, groups, communities and the larger world. Within this Area of Study, students may consider aspects of belonging in terms of experiences and notions of identity, relationships, acceptance and understanding.

Texts explore many aspects of belonging, including the potential of the individual to enrich or challenge a community or group. They may reflect the way attitudes to belonging are modified over time. Texts may also reflect choices not to belong, or barriers which prevent belonging.

Perceptions and ideas of belonging in texts can be constructed through a variety of language modes, forms, features and structures. In engaging with the text, a responder may experience and understand the possibilities presented by a sense of belonging to, or exclusion from, the text and the world it represents. This engagement may be influenced by the different ways perspectives are given voice in or are absent from a text.

In their responses and compositions students examine, question, reflect and speculate on the concept of belonging. They explore:

- how the concept of belonging is conveyed through the representations of people, relationships, ideas, places, events, and societies that they encounter in their prescribed texts and texts of their own choosing
- the underlying assumptions which shape those representations
- how the composer's choice of language modes, forms, features and structures shapes, and is shaped by, a sense of belonging or of not belonging
- the ways in which they perceive the world through texts
- the ways in which this study may broaden and deepen their understanding of themselves and the world
- the connections between and among texts in their representations of the concept of belonging.

MODULE B: Texts and Society

This module requires students to explore and analyse texts used in a specific situation. It assists students' understanding of the ways that texts communicate information, ideas, bodies of knowledge, attitudes and belief systems in ways particular to specific areas of society. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, p 74.)

ELECTIVES: ESL

MODULE B: Texts and Society

Elective 1: Living and Working in the Community

In this elective students explore the kinds of texts that are widely used in the workplace and the community. They respond to and compose texts appropriate to specific situations designed to meet students' needs and interests. They consider what these texts imply about the nature of the workplace or the community in which they are used.

Students are required to read and respond to a range of types of texts, including: job advertisements; applications and other forms; information brochures and technical manuals; news reports and editorials; feature articles; advertisements; web pages; speeches and interviews; and other relevant texts. They are required to compose a range of types of texts, including: job application letters and personal résumés; work and accident reports; letters to the editor; letters of complaint, appreciation and request; advertisements and information brochures; feature articles; web pages; speeches and interviews; and other relevant texts. Students are also required to identify and explain the purposes and language techniques used in these types of texts.

Students are to supplement this study with texts of their own choosing related to the elective. The support document, Workplace and Community Texts (see www.boardofstudies.nsw.edu.au), provides examples of types of texts and may further supplement students' study of this elective.

Elective 2: Academic English

In this elective students explore the kinds of texts that are widely used in formal learning situations. They respond to and compose texts appropriate to particular learning situations relevant to students' needs and interests. They consider what these texts imply about the construction of knowledge in particular fields of study.

Students are required to read and respond to a range of types of texts, including: academic reports and essays; text books; discussions and expositions; scientific, artistic and literary texts; examination and research tasks; web pages; oral presentations; interviews; and other relevant texts. They are required to compose a range of types of texts, including: academic reports and essays; discussions and expositions; learning journals and process diaries; reviews; web pages; oral presentations; notes and summaries; and other relevant texts. Students are also required to identify and explain the purposes and language forms and features used in these types of texts.

Students are to supplement this study with texts of their own choosing related to the elective. The support document, Academic English, (see www.boardofstudies.nsw.edu.au), provides examples of types of texts and may further supplement students' study of this elective.

Specific editions of the set text are listed. Schools, however, may use any suitable edition of the text selected, if the specified edition is unavailable. Where a text is quoted in an examination question it will be from the listed edition.

Electives and Texts for the English Extension 1 Course

Electives in the English Extension 1 course must be considered in the context of the module descriptions, course objectives, content and outcomes. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, pp 89–91.)

MODULE A: Genre

This module requires students to explore and evaluate notions of genre. It develops their understanding of the conventions and values associated with generic forms. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, p 89)

MODULE A: Genre

Elective 1: Life Writing

In this elective students explore nonfictional texts composed in a range of media that represent lives or aspects of lives. Texts such as biographies, autobiographies, memoirs and documentaries explore a life and may at the same time examine the recording of that life. Many examples of life writing interrogate whether there can ever be a comprehensive account of the facts of a life. They explore instead the various ways in which the facts of a life can be represented, interpreted and valued. Although these texts sometimes include fictional elements they are characteristically nonfictional accounts.

In this elective, students are required to study at least three of the prescribed texts, as well as other texts of their own choosing. In their responding and composing they explore, analyse, experiment with and critically evaluate their prescribed texts and a range of other examples of this life writing genre. They explore the diversity within the life writing genre in a range of texts and contexts.

Elective 2: Crime Writing

In this elective students examine texts composed in a range of media that encompass and scrutinise a crime and its investigation. Students consider how crime writing has evolved by extending, reimagining and challenging the conventions of the traditional detective story. Crime writing presents unlimited combinations, subversions and transformations of the classic 'whodunit' murder mystery. It is often self-consciously and/or playfully reworking the elements of the 'whodunit'. Some of the elements explored in the study of crime writing include how changing contexts and values have brought about changes in the traditional crime stories and resulted in new conventions, new understandings of what constitutes a crime and who plays the role of detective and even what 'justice' means. Students will also account for the increasing popularity of different forms of crime writing while the traditional detective stories continue to retain their appeal.

In this elective students are required to study at least three of the prescribed texts, as well as other texts of their own choosing. In their responding and composing they explore, analyse, experiment with and critically evaluate their prescribed texts and a range of other examples of this genre. They explore the diversity within the crime writing genre in a range of contexts and media.

Elective 3: Science Fiction

In this elective students explore texts that represent a spectrum of imagined worlds. Developments in science and technology, and their acceptance as progress, are at the core of science fiction. Science fiction texts may challenge the degree of acceptance of science and technology, and provoke controversy and debate about possibilities and the ramifications for humanity. These texts present a dynamic range of concerns, styles and textual forms. Science fiction texts reflect changing contexts and values. They may experiment with aspects of time and challenge and disrupt traditional perspectives on human form, morality, behaviour and power.

In this elective students are required to study at least three of the prescribed texts, as well as other texts of their own choosing. In their responding and composing they explore, analyse, experiment with and critically evaluate their prescribed texts and a range of other examples of this genre. They explore the diversity within the science fiction genre in a range of contexts and media.

MODULE B: Texts and Ways of Thinking

This module requires students to explore and evaluate a selection of texts relating to a particular historical period. It develops their understanding of the ways in which scientific, religious, philosophical or economic paradigms have shaped and are reflected in literature and other texts. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, p 89.)

ELECTIVES: Extension

MODULE B: Texts and Ways of Thinking

Elective 1: After the Bomb

In this elective students explore texts which relate to the period from the dropping of the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki up to the collapse of the Soviet Union and the dismantling of the Berlin Wall. A climate of Cold War anxiety permeates these texts in a number of ways. The texts may emerge from, respond to, critique, and shape our understanding of ways of thinking during this period. Many of these texts have a common focus on the personal and political ramifications of this era. They are often characterised by an intensified questioning of humanity and human beliefs and values. Experimentation with ideas and form may reflect or challenge ways of thinking during this period.

In this elective, students are required to study at least three of the prescribed texts, as well as other texts of their own choosing. In their responding and composing they explore, analyse, experiment with and critically evaluate their prescribed texts and a range of other appropriate examples. Texts should be drawn from a range of contexts and media, and should reflect the personal and political concerns of the post-war period.

ELECTIVES: Extension

MODULE B: Texts and Ways of Thinking

Elective 2: Romanticism

In this elective students explore texts which relate to ways of thinking characteristic of Romanticism in the late 18th century until the mid 19th century. The Romantics valued the imagination, individualism and idealism. Romanticism is typified by the search for meaning through representations of the individual’s relationship with the natural world, and wider social and political contexts. Texts related to this period examine or affirm the power of the imagination to inform, illuminate and transform human experience. Experimentation with ideas and forms may reflect or challenge ways of thinking during this period.

In this elective, students are required to study at least three of the prescribed texts, as well as other texts of their own choosing. In their responding and composing they explore, analyse, experiment with and critically evaluate their prescribed texts and a range of other appropriate examples. Texts should be drawn from a range of contexts and media, and should reflect the concerns of the Romantic period.

MODULE B: Texts and Ways of Thinking

Elective 3: Navigating the Global

In the late 20th century and early 21st century, the development towards a global culture has blurred traditional concepts and boundaries of time and space. Knowledge, values and culture have become at once global and local through the globalisation of communications. Choice and circumstance have created a range of individual and community responses to this changing reality: some have embraced or warily accepted it, while others have challenged or retreated from it. The ideas, language forms, features and structures of texts may reflect or challenge ways of thinking during this period.

In this elective students are required to study at least three of the prescribed texts, as well as other texts of their own choosing. In their responding and composing they explore, analyse, experiment with and critically evaluate their prescribed texts and a range of other appropriate examples. Texts should be drawn from a range of contexts and media and should reflect the relationships between the global and the local and the significance of these relationships to the life of the individual and their community.

MODULE C: Language and Values

This module requires students to investigate, explore and evaluate the ways in which language shapes and reflects culture and values. It allows students to focus on the study of language as they develop their understanding of values and the processes of valuing. (Reread English Stage 6 Syllabus, p 90.)

ELECTIVES: Extension

MODULE C: Language and Values

Elective 1: Textual Dynamics

In this elective students explore the dynamic relationships between and among texts, and between texts and responders, and how these relationships reflect values in texts. Students consider how composers transform ideas and experience into texts through insight, imaginative powers and stylistic ingenuity, and how responders can be transformed, delighted and impassioned by their interaction with texts. Among the dynamics to be considered are the cleverness and joy of invention, the challenges and pleasures of reading and interpretation, and the conversations between and among texts. Narrative and linguistic playfulness, experimentation with traditional forms and originality are also focal points in an elective which considers the active and vital relationships that exist between responders, composers and texts.

In this elective students are required to study at least three of the prescribed texts as well as other texts of their own choosing. In their responding and composing they explore, analyse, experiment with and critically evaluate their prescribed texts and a range of other examples relating to this elective. Texts should be drawn from a range of contexts and media and reflect the interrelationships between composer, responder and texts.

ELECTIVES: ExtensionMODULE C: Language and Values*Elective 2: Language and Gender

In this elective students explore through texts drawn from a range of media the idea that part of the role of language is to express and create the social identity of the speaker, of which gender is an important element. Students investigate, challenge and evaluate the ways in which language can be used to construct, perform or conceal masculine or feminine aspects of identity and their associated values through characters, voices and contexts. Language may express gender, but it also may provide a means of escaping strict limitations of conventional roles and values. There is a dynamic spectrum of possibilities and great flexibility in texts, as composers create voices and characters, and as characters themselves explore and challenge language and gender codes. Texts provide a playful and experimental space in which composers explore questions of identity through their language.

In this elective students are required to study at least three of the prescribed texts as well as other texts of their own choosing. In their responding and composing they explore, analyse, experiment with and critically evaluate their prescribed texts and a range of other examples in this elective. Texts should be drawn from a range of contexts and media and should reflect the interrelationships between language, gender and values.

Annotations of Texts

Annotations have been developed as explanations for the selection of texts prescribed in English courses for the Higher School Certificate in 2009–2014.

These explanations are based on the criteria established by the Board of Studies for the selection of texts appropriate for study for the Higher School Certificate and are intended to support specified aspects of the English courses. The criteria include:

- merit and cultural significance
- needs and interests of course candidature
- challenging teaching and learning opportunities.

The annotations assist in the selection of texts for particular candidatures and provide some suggestions for approaching teaching and learning. They are not prescriptive and do not offer guidelines for the interpretation of texts, electives or modules.

These annotations are presented in alphabetical order and are available on the Board of Studies website at: www.boardofstudies.nsw.edu.au.
