Employee's ~~responsibilities~~ have rights and responsibilities and are supported by the work place. You have to make sure you know what you are doing and have very good responsibilities so that people can respect you and show yourself that you're a good role model.

They should get paid a good amount because they are doing their job good and if you get new staff you could train them and they could give you positive feedback and tell people that it's a good workplace and very supportive.

Employees also have the right to do things and open up what they like. They could be working in a multicultural race.
