

Start here.

~~Wilfred Owen is a war poet~~
Wilfred Owen is a war poet who got inspiration from old romantic poems and his poems describe the horrors of war and the loss ~~and~~ ~~of~~ he felt.

Strange meeting is a poem Wilfred Owen wrote talking about meeting somebody who has died having a conversation with the dead soldiers that they are in hell and he is here suffering and questioning all about why this has happened.

In the first opening line of Strange meeting ~~that~~ it says "It seemed" which give us as the viewers a idea that it is a illusion ~~that~~ or a dream he is having.

In insensibility ~~he~~ he talks about loss all through out the poems and in the opening sentences he talked about welcoming death and ~~you~~ Owen also talked about ~~the~~ blood on

Which is a metaphor for dead bodies.

Wilfred Owen poems talk about loss in a dramatic ~~and~~ way and a heart felt way.

Additional writing space on back page.