Outline how the experiences of trench warfare changed soldiers' attitudes to the war over time.

Both source B and D tell us that the trenches were small and narrow which made it hard to move freely and very hard to move ~~under~~ ~~sold~~ soldiers. Both Robert Graves and John Laffin talk about how bad the trenches were, that they didn't make things to help them fight the war. Both source say that they weren't really trenches just "weather-eroded mudd ditches". The soldiers had very little to keep warm but they used ~~what~~ whatever they could find.
