2007 HSC Specimen Paper
Studies of Religion I and II

Introduction

This package contains:

- specimen examination papers for the 2007 Higher School Certificate examination in Studies of Religion I and Studies of Religion II;
- a sample Section II Answer Booklet;
- mapping grids, showing how each question in the examinations relates to the syllabus outcomes and content, and to the performance bands;
- sample marking guidelines for questions in Sections II, III and IV;
- a copy of the performance band descriptions for Studies of Religion, which have been modified to reflect the changes in the revised syllabus.

The 2007 HSC specimen papers have been produced in accordance with the Board’s Principles for Setting HSC Examinations in a Standards-Referenced Framework, published in Board Bulletin Volume 8 Number 9 (Nov/Dec 99), which is available on the website at <http://www.boardofstudies.nsw.edu.au/bulletins/index.html>. Questions are closely related to the outcomes of the course, and the papers as a whole are structured to allow for appropriate differentiation of student performance at all levels on the performance scale.

The papers have been designed so that students have a clear understanding of what they are required to do in each question and in working through the paper. Key words in questions, such as ‘discuss’, ‘analyse’, and ‘explain’, have been used consistently in accordance with the glossary published in the Board’s Assessment Support Document. The questions are written to ensure that the demands of the questions are clear and accessible to all students, and allow students the opportunity to demonstrate what they know, understand and can do.

The specimen papers are examples of the types of examinations that could be prepared within the examination specifications in the revised Studies of Religion syllabus. Examinations will be based on the syllabus, and will test a representative sample of syllabus outcomes. Therefore, the range and balance of outcomes tested in HSC examinations in 2007 and subsequent years may differ from those addressed in the specimen paper.

The mapping grid is an important feature of the development of the examination. It aids in ensuring that the examination as a whole samples a range of content and outcomes, and allows all students the opportunity to demonstrate their level of achievement.

Marking guidelines are developed at the same time as the examination questions, and show the criteria to be applied to the responses to questions, together with the marks to be awarded in line with the quality of the responses. For extended-response questions, performance is described at a number of levels of performance, each covering a range of marks. Marking guidelines will generally require some refinement at the marking centre to take account of unanticipated responses that students present. For essay-type questions, the standard described at each mark range will be made clear during pilot-marking by the selection of sample scripts.
There are a number of points to note in considering the Studies of Religion I and Studies of Religion II specimen papers:

- The format of the specimen papers reflects the new examination specifications. In subsequent examinations, the style and structure of the questions may differ from those in the specimen paper.

- As in the past, the examination for Studies of Religion I is a subset of the Studies of Religion II examination. The examination papers are structured so that the layout and numbering of the common questions are identical in both papers.

- In Section I of the examination, Studies of Religion I candidates will attempt ten multiple-choice questions and one short-answer question on Religion and Belief Systems in Australia post-1945, while Studies of Religion II candidates will attempt in addition ten multiple-choice questions and one short-answer question on Religion and Non-Religion.

- Questions may be based on stimulus material. The nature and amount of stimulus material will vary from year to year and will only be provided when it is essential to answering questions.

- Studies of Religion I candidates are required to answer two questions relating to Religious Tradition Depth Studies: one in Section II and one in Section III. Studies of Religion II candidates answer three questions: two in Section II and one in Section III. In each case, the question answered in Section III must be from a different religious tradition than the question(s) answered in Section II.

- In Section II, 15 marks are allocated to each three-part question. The marks allocated to each part may vary from year to year, with no part being worth more than 6 marks. The question(s) in Section II of the examination paper are to be answered in a Section II Answer Booklet, a copy of which is included in this package.

- A rubric indicating general criteria for judging performance for extended response questions has been placed at the beginning of Sections III and IV to clearly indicate the factors that will be used to assess responses to the question(s). These criteria are in addition to criteria specific to each question.

Studies of Religion I
2007 HSC Specimen Examination Mapping Grid

For each item in the examination, the grid shows the marks allocated, the syllabus content and syllabus outcomes it relates to, and the bands on the performance scale it is targeting. The range of bands shown indicates the performance candidates may be able to demonstrate in their responses. That is, if an item is shown as targeting Bands 3-5, it indicates that candidates who demonstrate performance equivalent to the Band 3 descriptions should be able to score some marks on the item, while those who perform at Band 5 or above could reasonably be expected to gain high marks. In the case of one-mark items, candidates who demonstrate performance at or above the Bands shown generally could be expected to answer the item correctly.

2007 HSC Specimen Examination Mapping Grid

For each item in the examination, the grid shows the marks allocated, the syllabus content and syllabus outcomes it relates to, and the bands on the performance scale it is targeting. The range of bands shown indicates the performance candidates may be able to demonstrate in their responses. That is, if an item is shown as targeting Bands 3-5, it indicates that candidates who demonstrate performance equivalent to the Band 3 descriptions should be able to score some marks on the item, while those who perform at Band 5 or above could reasonably be expected to gain high marks. In the case of one-mark items, candidates who demonstrate performance at or above the Bands shown generally could be expected to answer the item correctly.
