2012 HSC - Aboriginal Studies
Band 1/2
Sample 2 Question 18

To what extent have Indigenous peoples achieved equality in their countries?

The Lakota and Euroa Indigenous communities have both achieved equality in their countries in Education as they both are allowed to attend school, primary and secondary, they are giving an opportunity to a scholarship to ~~help~~ help them get what they need. They both have they right and there own choice to go to uni or college and study to be what they wanna be.

The law is that they are both allowed to attend a primary and secondary schooling which is k-12, they get scholarships which helps them on there journey through school and college or uni.

They are treated the same in each class, no different to any other student. They are also allowed to study there own culture which is a huge change to what it used to be.

they are also treated equally when they are being employed.

Employment is different different you are now allowed to get a job and be what you wanna be.

You wont be treated different anymore cause the colour of your skin.
