The importance of land today for Aboriginal people is a huge thing for them, the reason being is that the land of Australia was the Aboriginal peoples land, Aboriginal people owned the land, the land for Aboriginal is their home, their family, their culture, their history which is their life. It would hurt many many indigenous people, well anybody actually if their own home that was built by their bare hands was taken away from them because some believed the home didn't belong to anybody. The Aboriginal people survived off the land for thousand and thousands of years eating of it, hunting their food.
