Section 1, Question 18

2012 HSC - Aboriginal Studies

Band 2/3

Sample 1 Question 18

Indigenous people in most communities have improved a lot with Education and also in Employment.

In most communities indigenous Australians have achieved a lot in the past 10 years. Our generations are getting smarter and more understanding about what they want to do in life.

Indigenous people have achieved equality in Australia to be working like non-indigenous Australians and to be educated, to be Employed and to be independant.

And as is mentioned in part B, Zimbabwe, indigenous people in that country are not equal nor do they have the things in life that indigenous Australians do, they have to work all day just for the little bit of food or money. And just to be educated.

The indigenous groups of Zimbabwe have very very poor health and education skills or employment skills probably none what so ever.

As for Australian Aboriginals, we have achieved the right to be independant and the right to be educated and employed.

The three main things that need to be more addressed in indigenous communities are Health, Education and Employment.
