Question 23 (4 marks)

How might the implementation of Australian land capability classification affect the profitability and sustainability of agricultural systems?

4

Australian land capability classification is a way of judging & grouping together different land types based on how suited they are to different tasks (eg growing crops, grazing).

This will affect the profitability & sustainability of agricultural systems by determining what the land is to be used for, and not how to fix it & improve it.