Start here.

Today, I want to talk about three texts I recently learn it, they both me a deeper understanding what Australian vision is. One is the Lady Feeding The Cats and the Wombat by Douglas Stewart and another is a photograph of a firefighter giving water to the 4-year-old koala Sam by Russell Vickery.

In the Lady Feeding The Cats by Douglas Stewart the writer despite the Austrian's poor lady connection with the cats which no body feed it. But the poor lady the mentally overcoat her poverty. She looks after these cats by her alone, no body care of this cats but she love them and feed them. The phrase in "bonnet much bedraggled" demonstrate she is very poor, but she like her task to feed these cats. Every day "with a song in her brain", the cats seen her like a good friend and connection the deeper relationship with her. It can despite her inner and physically. The cats think her like a "princess of the tower" this like a toilet tale), awarding nobility. It can see the poor lady is very popular in these cats. Has feed their boars; they need her to feed "more than her body. The vision convey a poor lady connection with these cats they are like a friend, at the same time provide the human connection with the nature. animals. There is a similar vision in the next poem wombat.

In the the poem Wombat, "Some smell means men?", The rhetorical question revealing the wombat why the wombat comes out and looks so cute. "Hi! There, old pig, old bear," The metaphor language describe the wombat appearance, the wombat is friendly even through it not really close to the people I guess they must be shy. "We have one mother, one brother, the Use the personification to tell us we have one mother, nature and the nature is friendly with the human and the animals. The vision tell us we're human and animals are in the same family. is a nature. we need to protect the nature and animal let be stronger and beautiful. And build a good relationship with the human and the animals.

In the photograph the firefighter giving water to the koala. The fire burn in the mountains in 2009. But in this fire we see the close relationship with the human and the animals. In this fire, many trees and grass was burn it. everything become the dark. no more green view in our eye, but doesn't matter. we're see a lighter view front of our eyes. A firefighter giving water to the koala on the grass. The koala puts her right hand in the firefighter left hand. And the firefighter feeding the bottle of water for the koala, and they have eye contact. The koala gazing up to the firefighter. and in this photograph used the long shot to compare the background with the firefighter and the koala. it's juxtaposes. koala and the firefighter and the human like the nature.

In conclusion

This is an Australian vision in my three texts, koala is a unique animals in the land. it's current relationship between the human and the animals. It have good relationship with our nature.

Additional writing space on back page.