Question 2) Distinctive images offer a variety of perspectives on the world.

Compare how this is achieved in your prescribed text and ~~another~~ one other related text of your own choosing.

The shoe horn sonata by John Misto shows how distinctive images offer a variety of perspectives on the world. TSHS explores these images through descriptive language & tone. Throughout the story you hear these challenges and horrific experiences through WW II.

John Misto the author of TSHS was a war journalist. This means ~~he~~ he saw and lived through what Brydie & Shelah went through. The language and technique used by John Misto makes you see and feel the experience his capturing.

To me TSHS explores the upset, aggression, bravery and misery shown at wars. This I believe is related to a film 'The Hurt Locker' just like in TSHS you see war crime, loss of lives, the misery of war and also seeing people stay together just like Brydie & Shelah.
