

Start here. Q22

Employees - Employees need to receive appropriate training to ensure they comply with the NSW Work Health and Safety act as well as general codes such as the banking code of practice acts etc. Compliance training is ~~an~~ important in order to allow employees to be aware of patient confidentiality and other legal matters that come with it. Another important training aspect is to inform employees about cultural differences and give them the tools to overcome any issue that can arise as a result of cultural differences, this includes language classes for employees that struggle to speak english. [Another

Another good way for employees to work together in a team is to ensure they <sup>a bonding</sup> ~~bond~~ exercise is created ~~to~~ during training and/or induction, this will <sup>provide</sup> ~~create~~ employees with some knowledge of each other which in turn will create positive attitudes and a hardworking work force.

The company can also enforce, targets, which can mean if the employees finish their work according to correct procedures and in a good time they can have a reward.

Additional writing space on back page.