

Start here.

There are many issues currently affecting the delivery of care that is received in the aged care and health care industry such as short staff and limited caring.

The health care and aged care industry can respond by trying to hire more staff and promoting aged care jobs in the area more.

The industry needs to evaluate these issues and work on them.