Start here.

(a)
The use of online documentation over paper-based documentation for game support has advantages and disadvantages. The advantages of having online support include the person being able to access all the information they need using a computer while playing the game. However, if the support document is not secure, it may mean that anyone can change the information around. Paper-based documentation is easier because the document is in hard-copy meaning there would be no tampered information.

(b)
Purchasing images can sometimes be harder than creating your own because of the cost and copyright issues. If the company purchased images, they need to be aware of the copyright logo. If there is no logo, you still need the permission of the creator to ensure that they are ok with you using this image. Creating your own images is always easier on yourself as you do not need to take a number of steps to purchase and seek permission to use them.

(c) Strategies for testing the website include making sure that all links and shortcuts work on the website. Also make sure that the text appears the way you want it to and that the site is easy for users to navigate their way through. You should also use a website validator which would be able to tell you what is wrong with the website. It will show the amount of errors that need to be rectified.
